I guess Winter is finally here. We will be talking about snow and winter activities this week. Just for your information: All school closings will be on W has 11 as well as other stations. It should also be posted on our school website. In case we ever have to release early our morning class would stay late and our PM class would not come to school. We were very proud of our children this week for remembering what hibernation was and for doing so well at our new solitaire play that we started last week. They are growing up. Have a great week.
